LESSON OVERVIEW

What should students know/do by the end of this week's lessons?

Students will develop their understanding of genre and the recurring conventions used in film. They will examine how setting, character, visual style and sound establish expectations, recognising that a film may combine or challenge conventions. Students will compare two short examples using matched features and explain similarities and differences through evidence rather than relying on genre labels alone.

End-of-Week Assessment/Check: How will you know they got it?

Teacher questioning, class discussion, analysis of worked examples and the completed independent activities. Check that students use accurate terminology, select specific evidence and explain how a choice creates meaning or addresses an audience. Review the written, visual or practical work alongside its annotations, and use the final checks in both lessons to identify the next skill requiring practice.

LESSON SLOTS - TUESDAY AND FRIDAY

Lesson	Date	Learning Objective	The Lesson Flow	Differentiation
1	1 September 2026	By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify film genre conventions and explain how they establish audience expectations.	H: Show contrasting teacher-selected film stills without their titles. Ask students to suggest a genre and identify the setting, character or visual detail that influenced their decision. Record disagreements as questions to investigate. ID: Explain genre as a category recognised through recurring conventions. Discuss typical settings, character roles, narrative situations, costume, props, lighting and sound. Distinguish a convention from a rule that every film must follow, and explain that genres can overlap or change. WD: Analyse an age-appropriate science-fiction example using the book's approach to reading film language. Identify evidence such as an unfamiliar setting or technology and connect it to audience expectations	Support: Provide a genre vocabulary bank and a grid divided into setting, character, visual style and sound. Complete one row together and pause an extract at useful moments so students can gather evidence before explaining it. Extension: Students identify a possible genre hybrid and explain which conventions come from each genre. Ask how combining familiar conventions with an unexpected feature could attract an audience.

			about the story. Compare a clear convention with a feature that alone would not establish genre. YD: Students complete a genre-evidence grid for three selected stills or short extracts. For each example, they identify at least three conventions and explain one expectation created for the audience. Groups compare their choices and revise a label that is not supported by the available evidence. C: Ask students to explain one convention and why it helps an audience recognise a genre. Check that their evidence comes from the text rather than from knowing its title or remembering unrelated information about the film.
2	4 September 2026	By the end of this lesson, students will be able to compare how two short film examples use genre conventions to appeal to audiences.	H: Return to two contrasting examples from the previous lesson. Ask whether sharing a genre necessarily means that both texts create the same mood or appeal to the same viewers. ID: Explain comparison as examining both texts against the same feature rather than writing two unrelated descriptions. Discuss how conventions can be repeated, adapted or challenged. Encourage qualified audience claims supported by the extracts, rather than assuming that a genre belongs to one age group or gender. WD: Model a comparison of setting and sound in two age-appropriate extracts. Identify a similarity, explain a significant difference and connect it to the expectation or mood created. Show how a useful comparison refers	Support: Provide matched prompts for each extract and a paragraph frame using “Both…”, “However…” and “This may…”. Allow students to select from a small number of relevant conventions before choosing their own comparison focus. Extension: Students evaluate which example more strongly signals its genre and justify the judgement. They consider whether familiarity with genre conventions might change an audience’s interpretation.

			to specific evidence from both examples within the same paragraph. YD: Pairs gather evidence in a shared comparison grid, then individually write two linked paragraphs comparing the examples. Each paragraph should address one feature in both texts and explain an audience effect. Students use peer feedback to improve a comparison that simply lists observations. C: Ask students to read a sentence that compares rather than describes. Check that both examples appear in the response and that the claimed similarity or difference is supported by identifiable details.

MATERIALS NEEDED FOR THE WEEK

- GCSE Media Studies for AQA (Heinemann): Unit 1 Film: Genre and reading film language
- Teacher computer, display screen and speakers where audio is used
- Age-appropriate teacher-selected extracts or teacher-prepared fictional media texts
- Prepared analysis worksheet, evidence grid or production brief
- Paper, pencils, storyboard or design templates, and whiteboard markers
- Classroom computers and save folders; camera or approved image bank when required
- Lesson success criteria and teacher observation checklist

END-OF-WEEK REFLECTION

- What worked well?

- What flopped or confused students?

- What needs to be re-taught or adjusted next week?
